

We Declared Our Independence 250 Years Ago; Demonstrate It Now, or Risk Armageddon

June 3, 2025 (EIRNS)—Ever since the June 1st Ukrainian attacks on the five Russian military bases (which attacks failed or were repelled at three of them), the mainstream media have been crowing about “flipping the script”—“Russia is weakened!” they scream. “Now is the time to assassinate Putin!” blare the NATO-bots in social media. Another threefold attack has been made on the beautiful Crimean Kerch Bridge, which appears to have failed to cause the severe structural damage intended, but is an obvious escalation, and provides more “evidence” for the gullible about Russia’s supposed weakness.

Meanwhile, the Deputy Chair of Russia’s Security Council, Dmitry Medvedev, in an effort to cool the increasingly angered Russian people, posted a clarification of the Russian strategy:

To everyone who is worried and waiting for retribution.

It’s right to worry—that’s what normal people do. Retribution is inevitable.

But keep in mind:

1. Our Army is pushing forward and will continue to advance. Everything that needs to be blown up will be blown up, and those who must be eliminated will be.

2. The Istanbul talks are not for striking a compromise peace on someone else’s delusional terms but for ensuring our swift victory and the complete destruction of the neo-Nazi regime. That’s what the Russian Memorandum published yesterday is about.

While it is known that Secretary of State Marco Rubio expressed condolences to Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov over the deaths of civilians in the Bryansk bridge destruction, as of this writing there has been no public comment by President Donald Trump or anyone of his cabinet on denouncing the terroristic attacks on Russian civilians and civilian infrastructure. Late Tuesday, June 3, White House Spokeswoman Karoline Leavitt told a journalist who asked whether Trump had been informed prior to the attack, curtly, “He was not.” She said she’d “rather let the President express” his position on the attacks (which he has not yet done.)

As General Michael Flynn stated, if Zelenskyy went ahead with these attacks without informing President Trump, “this isn’t simply a breach of protocol, it’s a geopolitical insult and a warning sign. If Ukraine is willing to conduct strikes with strategic consequences without notifying the White House, we are no longer allies with coordination issues—we are co-belligerents flying blind.”

It’s actually worse. We have the following possibilities:

First, that Zelenskyy’s forces pulled this off unaided by the West and didn’t inform Trump (given the presence of two U.S. Senators in Kiev the day before, chances are close to null that the U.S.A. was not involved.)

Second, as most military bloggers are speculating, that Ukraine did this under direction of MI6 and CIA, with MI6 playing the lead, meaning that American intel agencies knew and didn’t inform Trump; or,

Third, that Trump was informed of it, and either felt he couldn’t prevent it, or chose not to.

If the first scenario is true, there should be mass firings at our various intel agencies. If the second is true, President Trump is really not running American policy, as Colonel Macgregor keeps saying. If either the second or third, there is an ongoing coup d'état against the Presidency, which must be exposed and defeated. A question related to this is, whatever happened with the investigation of former FBI Director James Comey's assassination threat against President Trump?

What followers of the wise words of Lyndon and Helga Zepp-LaRouche do know is that we are at the end of an era. The bankrupt British Liberal System is at its end, and is desperate, as the new Canadian Premier Mark Carney said in 2019 to the Jackson Hole, Wyoming gathering of central bankers, to impose "regime change." What he meant was that we should have no more republics, but central bankers' dictatorships, and we see this policy in the increasingly blatant election-rigging both in the United States and the EU.

These imperial bankers desire to increase the death rate, through starvation, war, energy deprivation, and other means, while keeping their massively over-bloated bubble of derivatives obligations inflated, including with ridiculous military spending. They need John Q. Public to believe that with enough weapons, Ukraine can win this war. "See, Johnny,

Russia is now weakened, but they would invade London if they could, so we have to stop them! Let's go for broke and open the money printing spigots to produce the next Wunderwaffen!"

Of course this operation "Dr. Strangelove" will not work! Neither the United States, nor the increasingly bankrupt nations of the EU even have the physical capacity to wage such a war, making the danger of a nuclear first strike very real.

The American people must demand of our so-called leaders, including President Trump, and emphatically the pathetic members of the U.S. Senate, "Break from the British Empire! Divide and Rule Is Not the American Way! Adopt the foreign policy of John Quincy Adams and Lyndon LaRouche. Are you with the founders of our Republic, who would be rejoicing at the prospects of a BRICS-based new security and development architecture, and the positive role we could play, or are you a traitor, not just to our republic, but to the entire human race, which you are willing to sacrifice for your own perverse delusion?"
