

So, Who Did Order Kiev's Drone Attack on Russia's Nuclear Bombers, and Why?

June 7, 2025 (EIRNS)—With growing precision, Russian diplomatic and intelligence officials have been pointing the finger at London, and at British intelligence circles in particular, for principal responsibility for the remote-control guidance of Kiev's provocative attacks on Russia's nuclear bomber fleet, as well as the May 20 drone attack on President Putin's helicopter as he traveled to Kursk region.

Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Maria Zakharova warned friendly states on June 5 against “flirting with the British,” since they “interfere in the internal affairs of other states, directly threatening their sovereignty and territorial integrity.” Veteran intelligence expert SVR Lt. Gen. (ret.) Leonid Reshetnikov told Sputnik that British intelligence has been out to destroy Russia for centuries, and that they are far more sophisticated and dangerous than the CIA.

And on June 6, Russian military expert Dmitry Kornev argued in an analysis published in RT that the June 1 drone strikes “blended high-tech sabotage, covert infiltration, and satellite-guided timing with the kind of precision that only the world's most advanced intelligence networks can deliver.” He explained that the Kiev regime “is deeply embedded within NATO's intelligence-sharing architecture.... Kiev draws primarily on NATO-provided data, supplementing it with its own domestic sources where it can.”

Nor should it be forgotten that U.S. President Trump has himself been targeted for removal by British intelligence sources (such as in the infamous 2017 Steele Dossier) and their complicit neocon allies in the United States—not to mention the two more recent actual assassination attempts in 2024. And on May 15, 2025, Director of National Intelligence Tulsi Gabbard went on national TV to accuse former FBI Director James Comey of calling for the assassination of President Trump again now.

In short, the world today is midstream in a continuing British-run operation to decapitate the governments of both Russia and the United States, and to unleash a nuclear confrontation between the two superpowers.

As Lyndon LaRouche warned back in 2001, in the aftermath of the 9/11 attacks: “Although the telephone conversation, as repeatedly reported publicly by President Bush, between Bush and Russia's President Putin, resulted in a failure of the initial nuclear-strategic aims of the attempted coup d'état, the perpetrators of that attempted coup are still roaming free, are still lurking within the high-ranking positions they held on the early morning of Sept. 11, and are still poised to strike, menacing the U.S. government and President, even still today.”

That is precisely the situation we face still today.

Helga Zepp-LaRouche brought the picture up to date in her remarks to the 105th weekly meeting of the International Peace Coalition on June 6, and also pointed to the solution.

“What is behind this madness? I think the simple answer is that, when empires collapse, they have a tendency to strike out. I'm not talking about the America of Trump; I'm talking about the British Empire, which exists not in the form of nations, but in the form of an oligarchical financial structure which is sitting in the City of London, Wall Street, and you could add Silicon Valley and the famous MICIMAT'T.

“Their situation is terrible. The financial system of that neoliberal system is about to blow out. They have an unmanageable situation, with an overindebted U.S. with $37 trillion in debt. But much more important is the $2 quadrillion over-extended derivatives market, which is like a powder keg. Since they are not willing to change that, because it is based on the maximization of profit for a very small class of billionaires and millionaires at the expense of billions of people all over the world, that is the driving motive for the war.

“So, unless we remedy that as the real cause of the war, as long as they keep trying to feed this system with one bubble after the other, we are sitting in this war danger.”
